

Journal of Global Indigeneity

The Colonial Affliction

Péta Phelan

ORCID

Journal of Global Indigeneity

© The Author

Vol. 8, Issue 2, 2024

Keywords

Indigenous, anticolonialism, poetry

The Colonial Affliction

The 'thin blue ~~line~~ crime the Wealth's 'State Agents' beat up and brutalising Coloniality's flagrants a GENOCIDEs opposers marked as thugs and vagrants objecting clear WAR CRIMES 'cos their hearts aren't vacant

You march-on-in with the delight that you're takin' cosplaying your humanity
'cos your soul's forsaken FASCISM isn't certain but it's a choice you're makin' you're beefed-up bullshit dressed up as bacon

Ignoring the war the murders, rapes, and cries and you believe that you're a hero 'cos you avert your eyes and you believe that you're the hero actioning the world's demise
- the propaganda worked because you bought the lies

Imagine ever thinking you're out here protectin' when you're a puppet on some strings performing GREED's projections heeding every single call dictates, demands, and directions whilst they feed you meat-stripped bones for your own collection

You wonder why you're starving and why you don't sleep at night and why your memories haunt you and your chest feels tight or how your brain got broken and your nerves are shot Infliction → what you give Affliction ← what you got